RAILWAY MEN TO SEEK PROTECTION

GATHERING IN NEW YORK LISTS TENS TO PLANS FOR FUTURE.
NOTABLE REPORT IS MADE

Executive Committee Of The Railway
Business Association Suggests Methods Of Conduct.

New York, Nov. 10.—There will be no recurrence of public agitation against railroads if the reasonable desires of the patrons are not disregarded by the management of railroads, is the theme of the annual report of the executive committee of the Railway Business Association which met here today. The report says:

"The Railway Business Association was organized one year ago with the view of ascertaining that the railway supply industries can be made to operate public opinion more friendly to the railroads."

"We have taken no part in the affairs of any party or faction, or in the discussion of any question except railroad regulation, and have maintained complete independence of the railroad officials."

"The public, speaking through boards of trade, through the press and through political representatives, has shown that employers asking only fair and moderate consideration of measures affecting them, are welcome, and cordially acknowledged the worthiness of our motive, our right to be heard, and our frankness in conceding the need of regulation, as well as of some voluntary changes in railroad practice."

"The railroad officials, on the other hand, have been overbearing, by the very cordiality of our reception at the hands of the public, that the greatest success lies in conference, conciliation and concession as practiced in the diplomatics of competitive commerce."

"It is our settled conviction that no real benefit can come from a general program of obstruction to regulation. Regulation has come to stay. There will be no compromise whether railroads like it or not."

"The railroads and other special magazines, bulletins and otherwise are urging their men to meet the public desires."

"Portions of the public often ask what they ought not to have and what it is not in the public interest for them to have. An appalling mass of bills confronts Congress and every state legislature at every session. It is physically impossible for legislators to spread their attention over so many suggestions and still give adequate heed to the prevention of mistakes in the bills which become laws."

"We find it nevertheless to be the conviction of many business men and others that a large part of the antagonism to railroads has its origin in ignorance over what seems to them inconsiderate treatment given by the railroads. Our representatives might go far to solve the whole question if we could induce the railroads to redouble their efforts in the direction of strengthening the personnel of those grades of their employees who come most in contact with the public and have most to do with forming public opinion."

"Many thoughtful observers look forward with grave apprehension to another season of public feeling against the railroads. Disregard of the reasonable desires of railroad patrons inflicts those who are immediately affected by them, and give opportunity for arousing widespread resentment among the masses of the people. If the return to prosperity and the present recession of hostility against the railroads should follow heedlessness and result in a lapse into practices upon just criticism, this will furnish material for a new anti-railroad campaign."

"To avert this calamity, the best efforts of all concerned and especially those closely concerned should be freely given."

MENOMINEE RIVER'S POWER TO BE TAKEN

Big Power Company Planning for Increasing Manufacturing Facilities.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Merrill, Wis., Nov. 10.—If present laws mature, the Menominee river will in another year have developed a billion dollar water power plant, a billion dollar electric power plant, a billion dollar paper mill, and a billion dollar saw mill, and a billion dollar lumber mill.

The project is being operated by Harry J. Brown of Marquette, presumably acting for Senator Isaac Stephenson, E. A. Edmonds of Appleton, Elmer Grimmer of the Grimmer Lumber company, and member of the state board of control, and half a dozen equally well known men. Contracting companies are already signing quietly on the estimates for the work, and the lands needed for the overflow, dam all the buildings, and the short distance that power will have to be transmitted will make the power unusually cheap.

The company expects to have sufficient power to supply most of the industrial plants in Menominee and Marquette and the short distance that power will have to be transmitted will make the power unusually cheap.

This project may prevent the immediate development of the water power at Grand Rapids, twenty-two miles up the river, although later this will also be needed.

The Peshigo water power is said here to be costing a lot of money and the low water to be a hindrance to the project, which is to develop 6,000 to 8,000 horse-power, engineers state that they will do well to get 1,500 horse-power.

TOUTONS CELEBRATE BIRTH OF SCHILLER

150th Anniversary Of Natal Day Of Favorite Poet Of Fatherland Universally Observed Today.

Berlin, November 10.—Throughout Germany and in many other countries, wherever the German tongue is spoken the 150th anniversary of Schiller's birth was observed today and in almost every German city or town special celebrations were held in honor of the great poet whose memory is so dear to every German.

In Berlin, Vienna and other large cities municipal celebrations were held, in which all the schools and civic societies and institutions took part. Literary societies and other organizations in all parts of Germany and Austria have made special preparations for the celebration and arranged elaborate programs for the memorial exercises.

The principal celebration, however, was held at the little town of Marbach, in Württemberg, where Johann Christoph Friedrich von Schiller was born in 1759. The old-fashioned, but well preserved house in which the poet first saw the light of day, was the scene of thousands of pilgrims who came from all parts of Germany to pay their tribute to the memory of the most popular of the German nation.

Hundreds of municipalities and literary societies, universities and dramatic organizations in all parts of Europe sent representatives to deposit laurel wreaths and flowers in Schiller's birth-home.

Nearly every German city and town of any prominence has at least one statue of Schiller and everywhere these statues were decorated with wreaths and flowers. Particularly elaborate and interesting was the celebration at Weimar, where Schiller lived for many years of his intimate friendship with Goethe, and where he wrote some of his noblest and most enduring works, "Wallenstein," "The Bride of Messina," and "William Tell." The whole town, with special reference to the Schiller's greatest drama at the Court Theatre.

The general enthusiasm manifested throughout Germany in honoring the memory of Schiller upon the occasion of the 150th anniversary of his birth caused a remarkable revival of the poet's great dramas. Not only did Schiller's plays completely monopolize the stage in all German speaking countries today, but in many of the larger cities the principal theatres have placed some of the most popular plays of the great writer upon the repertory for the entire week. In progressive exercises were held in public and private schools throughout Germany and the German speaking parts of Austria.

DISCLOSURES HERE LEAD TO RAID ON CHICAGO OLEO MEN

Dogus Creamery Butter Confiscated in Janesville Was Traced from Milwaukee to Illinois Metropolis.

As the outcome of the arrest of A. E. Graham and the confiscation here of Graham of 580 pounds of bogus creamery butter, supposed to have been manufactured at Alexander, Minn., but shipped here from Milwaukee, it is reported that revenue agents and deputy United States marshals at Chicago last evening swooped down upon the Marboer brothers, who are alleged to conduct a chain of sixteen butter, egg, and provision stores in the metropolis and to be extensively engaged in the illegal sale and manufacture of oleomargarine. According to advices received here, the stuff which was sent in here was not only traced to Milwaukee, but thence to Chicago and resulted in the arrest, under orders from District Attorney Sims, of three of the Marboer brothers and eight other men and women employed as clerks at their establishments on South Halsted street and Emerald avenue. Quantities of alleged oleomargarine were seized. According to the charges the dealers have made a practice of selling it without the proper brand and without paying the government tax. The punishment for turning out such stuff is from 1 to 3 years in prison and for selling it from 1 to 2 years behind the bars.

Graham's Friend Davis U. S. Revenue Inspector Beecher Stern, who is here today collecting evidence, and the other officials are seeking hopeless signs today because Graham's friend, Davis, who came out of a Milwaukee hospital yesterday to pay the young man's $50 fine, was allowed to get away from them. When Chief Appleby located Davis in the Milwaukee sanitarium he had goggles over his eyes and answered to him in a very low way. Graham, he said, was simply a young friend of his brother and while he felt sorry for him, he could not think of paying any attention to his appeal for aid. Nevertheless he came out of the hospital in a hurry the next day and talked yesterday about producing the $1,000 bonds when Graham was re-arrested on a federal warrant charging him with selling and offering for sale sixteen 50-pound packages of oleomargarine falsely branded as creamery butter. He laughed insolently at Deputy U. S. Marshal Pugh when the latter demanded of him what he knew about "that butter" and intimated that the officer was a greenhorn in the service. When he became too obstreperous in U. S. Court Commissioner or Stanley D. Tallman's court, the latter threatened to subjugate him before the grand jury and it is probably a great pity that the threat was not carried into execution. After that Davis said that he was tired of answering questions and that as his eyes bothered him he guessed he would be going. All in all probably he is far beyond the Wisconsin lines long ere this, and still going.

Hearing on Tuesday Graham, who appears to have been only a tool in the hands of the gang, will have his hearing before U. S. Court Commissioner Tallman next Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. Assistant U. S. District Attorney H. H. Morgan will be here to conduct the examination and a number of dairy and food experts and other officers will also be on hand. Pending the hearing Graham will be confined in the Rock county jail.

Man Dies While in Cataleptic Trance —Hypnotist Arrested.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 10.—As the result of a hypnotic experiment Robert Simpson is dead and Prof. Arthur Everton of Newark, the hypnotist, is under arrest and in a state of collapse. Simpson was hypnotized at a performance in a theater here. After placing the man in a cataleptic state the hypnotist performed many tests in the presence of the audience to show the thoroughness of his work. When the time came to end the exhibition, however, Prof. Everton found that his work, to all appearance, had been too thorough. The subject could not be revived.

In alarm the hypnotist called on physicians, who, after laboring a long time over Simpson, pronounced him dead.

Notwithstanding this decision, the man was taken to a hospital, where Prof. Everton and County Physician W. H. Long made efforts to revive him. No results having been obtained after several hours, Everton was arrested. Everton collapsed when he realized his plight.

The authorities granted Everton permission to call in another professional hypnotist from Newark to make a last effort to revive Simpson.

A third hypnotist was summoned from New York by the management of the theater, and he also will attempt to restore Simpson to life.

If all these efforts fail an autopsy will be performed to determine the exact cause of the subject's death.

An autopsy was performed on Simpson and according to the coroner, death was primarily due to natural causes and the man probably had been suffering for some time from an aneurism. Everton has employed counsel and will fight the case.

Simpson, the victim, was 35 years old and was accustomed, it is said, to drinking heavily. It is generally admitted that he was intoxicated during the test.

Attempted Train Wreck. Chicago, Nov. 10.—Went is believed to have been an attempt to wreck and hold up the first Northwestern train that leaves Chicago for Milwaukee at eight o'clock was slowed last night by the fact that a slow suburban train carrying hundreds of passengers bumped safely over a steel weight began laid across the track near Waukegan, and the suburban crew lagged the other train in time. There is no doubt that had the faster train hit the obstruction it would have been derailed and many passengers killed or injured.

The first white sailor, John F. Johnston, reached the place, now Appleton, named for Mrs. Lawrence, in April, 1840, and the school opened on Nov. 12 of that year in a four-story frame building. SETTLES SUIT WITH STEAMBOAT CONCERN

Negro Roustabout Who Was Hurt, Paid for Injury—Two Persons Claim Same Body.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 10.—As a result of being thrown into the Mississippi river and having his back badly injured, Charles Norris, a negro roustabout, settled with the Diamond Jo company for $1,100. The accident happened while the steamer St. Paul was unloading freight here and was caused by a swinging gang plank breaking. John Mott, another roustabout, was killed at the same time, his body being recovered from the river a week later.

While theasket containing the body of the late Walter Jordan, who was killed by a train, was being taken from a grave in the latter's behalf in order to be identified by a sister, a telegram was received from James C. Gordon of St. Paul asking that the remains be held until his arrival. Mr. Jordan is searching for a brother named Walter Jordan, who disappeared four years ago. When theasket was opened in the presence of the two searchers, Miss Katie Jordan of Chicago immediately recognized the remains as those of her brother and had the body removed to the Catholic cemetery here for burial.

Following shortly after the dismissal from office of Overseer Johnson of the county poor farm, the slating of the Poor Commissioner John Hansen for dismissal created a sensation in the meeting of the county board. The action of the committee comes after a thorough investigation of the poor department. It is said the principal reason for making the resignation of Mr. Hansen is the fact of alleged disconcerting treatment of dependents who came to him for assistance. Although Mr. Hansen is prepared to resist any efforts to force his resignation before his term expires two other persons have announced themselves as candidates for the position.

BELOIT YOUNG MAN ACCUSED OF THEFT

Lorin Robbery Arrested Today for Alleged Robbery Committed Last June—To Plead Guilty.

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 10.—Lorin Roasted, a boy seventeen years of age, was arrested today and brought into municipal court on a charge of robbery. The crime having been committed last June. It is said that Roasted entered the home of his brother-in-law, Ever Olson, and stole eighteen dollars in money, a revolver and a razor. He waived examination but later requested to change his plea to "guilty." He will probably be sent to the State Reformatory at Green Bay. District Attorney John Fisher is conducting the prosecution. Young Roasted is accused of various thefts while working surrounding towns.

The farmers have been bothered so much by hunters and fishermen that they will call upon Sheriff Schellert to aid them in keeping people from their premises.

STREET PROBLEM WAS CONSIDERED

ALL PHASES DISCUSSED AT SEC-OND REGULAR MEETING.

BELOIT MEN ON PROGRAM

Experts As Well As Those Who Simply Use and Pay for the Roads Were Heard.

Janesville's ever present street problem, from the standpoint of the automobile owner as well as from the less elevated viewpoint of the citizen who is compelled to stick to the good old heel and toe method of locomotion, was the city engineer looks at it, as the members of the common council saw it, was the subject that was fully discussed by an able group of speakers at last night's meeting of the "Twit-tled Club."

Mingled with the somewhat caustic criticisms of those whose road knowledge was derived solely from riding over the streets, was some expert information offered by road-builders from Beloit and Rock county. In addition to the members of the club, Mayor Curran and the board of aldermen were present and gave and contributed some facts about the political and road conditions that many who thought that good thoroughfares were solely a matter of material and construction, will undoubtedly bear in mind when some ardent road crank begins to rant the city's highways and officials.

In general, the speakers, both those on the program and those who were called during the course of the evening to give their opinions, agreed on several things. One of them was that both the roads themselves and the method of paying for them could be improved. Second, that the poor condition of the paved streets was not so much the fault of the material itself, or of the method of construction, as it was the improper method in which the highways were repaired and kept from deteriorating. Finally, that the constant upheaval incident to the installation of water, gas and sewer mains and laterals had a great deal to do with the uneven and hum-mocky surface of the paved thoroughfares. However, as regards road-making material and the relative expediency of the city roads as compared with those of the country, there was a wide difference of opinion.

Proceeding the regular program, and following the banquet, the routine business of the club was transacted.
A letter from G. G. Mayne of St. Paul, founder of the club, was read; C. R.
Henderson, treasurer of the club, presented his report; Dr. S. B. Buckmaster was elected leader of the club, and presented his report; "Industrial Education," will be discussed, and the committee on school prizes presented the list of winning janitors which was as follows: First prize, $10, William Dennison, Webster school; second prize, $5, C. W. Brooks, Grant school; third prize, $3, George T. Vinay, Jackson school; fourth prize, August Muenchow, Garfield school. The work of the janitors of the Douglas, Adams and Washington schools was also commended while the committee reported that the janitor of the Lincoln school had small opportunity to make improvements because of altogether unfavorable surroundings.

Following the reports, H. L. McManis as leader for the evening, gave his opinion on "What An Automobile Owner Thinks of Janitors." Mr. McManis said that he had been originally satisfied, but on account of illness, was unable to be present. Dr. Dwight spoke in part as follows:

"Mr. McManis has stated that the cause of Mr. Palmer's absence was illness, but his real reason was confidence in me. He said that Janesville's streets were so bad that he really did not dare to tell how bad they really were. In my address, I shall not attempt to enter into the details of what material is the best, but simply speak from the standpoint of how best to improve them. During the past ten years, $250,000 has been spent on street improvement, $25,000 this year. This is altogether too much for the amount of good that has been done. How and where have these sums been used? The members of the common council have had the responsibility of disbursing this money, but whether or not it has been used to advantage can easily be seen.
As the members of the council are not supposed to be experts on road construction, a road commissioner has been appointed whose duties are to see that the highways are kept up, but he is almost shorn of authority and cannot act without instructions from the aldermen, none of whom, as is generally well known, have ever been selected for their work in connection with street improvement. Not only is the street commissioner without authority, which makes it necessary for him to run to the alderman of the ward before he can dump a load of gravel on a bad spot, but he is woefully underpaid for the work incident to keeping the streets in a town the size of Janesville in good condition. If the commissioner had authority, the roads of Janesville with ordinary repairs, would easily live out their allotted span of ten years, when they are of limestone or gravel. It is the upkeep of the streets that is so important and that Janesville's streets are so bad can be attributed to the fact that they have not been kept up by the city after the property owners have built them.

"From my own experience, I can state positively that if an automobile owner wishes to have a pleasant drive, he must leave the city. There have been streets in the city that were once good, but the careless work of plumbers in filling trenches, have ruined them and upon gutters have completely spoiled them. In almost every instance, country roads are better than the urban streets in Janesville.
In connection with his statement that an auto ride can be enjoyed only on the country roads, Dr. Dwight cited some examples, notably the Emerald Grove, M. Atkinson, and the Belmont to Elkhorn roads, contrasting them with such city highways as Jackson and East streets. In conclusion he said:

"If Janesville is to have good thoroughfares, the money to be used must be entrusted to a commissioner who has both authority and experience, the roads must be kept up and repaired yearly, and the open gutters must be done away with. As it is now the city engineer and street commissioner may do their best, but the former has not the time to go back over his work annually and the latter has not the power to carry out his work to the best advantage."

"What Janesville thus Done and Should Do," was the subject allotted to City Engineer C. V. Korah, who presented his address with the statement that he would confine his remarks mainly to the merits and values of the different kinds of pavements.

"The construction of pavements and their proper maintenance is of great and ever increasing interest to every resident and taxpayer. It is a matter of local interest in which large sums are spent in their construction and even larger sums in their proper repair and renewal. The dissatisfaction with the present conditions in nearly all our cities, the increasing variety of materials used, the number of patent processes that have been placed on the market, the variety of experiments being tried with new methods and materials, and the revival of old materials in modified forms, clearly indicate that the ideal pavement for all conditions has not yet been found. However, the merits and relative values of the various materials being used are becoming better known and the limitations of each more definitely fixed.

"A pavement may be suited to one class of traffic and fall entirely under another. It may be cheap in the first cost and become the most expensive when maintenance costs are added.
Some pavements, like wood blocks, are subject to decay and may fall from the action of the elements rather than from the traffic sustained."

After thus introducing his subject by showing how varying conditions affect the kind of paving material to be used, Mr. Korah went on to show that each community must solve the problem for itself and that great care and foresight is necessary in the selection of the best and most economical pavement to meet the particular conditions under which it is constructed.

"Some of the most essential qualities to be considered in the selection of a proper pavement may be stated briefly as follows: First, those that affect the traffic by determining the cost of haulage. Speed, wear and tear of horses and vehicles require that the pavement afford a good foothold, be adapted to every grade, be suitable to every class of traffic and be smooth enough to afford a minimum resistance. Next, those qualities that affect the adjacent premises. These require that the pavement be impervious to moisture and fifth, noiseless, yield neither dust nor mud and be easily cleaned. Last, those qualities that affect the taxpayer. These require that the pavement be hard and durable so as to resist wear and disintegration. It should be cheap, easily cleaned, repaired and maintained."

Mr. Korah then traced, briefly, the history of paving in this city from the first graveling of the roads to the Nicholson block pavement of forty years ago, down to the present system of brick and macadam streets. He stated that at the present time Janesville has 1.12 miles of brick pavement including the alleys, which cost nearly $400,000.

Brick pavements have many of the essential qualities of a good pavement, affording a good foothold for horses, easy of traction, not disagreeably noisy, yield but little dust and mud, adapted to nearly all grades, easily repaired and cleaned, and slightly absorbent, pleasing to the eye, expeditiously laid and durable under moderate traffic. For a city like Janesville it affords one of the best pavements for the business district. Its use should be extended to the heaviest traffic streets leading away from the business center as well as many of the intersecting streets adjacent.
"The speaker next touched on the necessity for a solid and unyielding foundation for the brick, the relative merits of concrete and macadam for this purpose, the floors that have been used, including the advantages of estimate filling, and the market from which Janesville has purchased her brick. In connection with the objections raised to extending the brick pavement beyond the business sec-

up a job at $75 to take one at $40?
Not for me!"

Well, let's see. What did the man mean by "outlook?"

Evidently he meant prospects. There was a better chance to get on in the cheaper job. He saw more rapid promotion in it. And he saw in the outcome of it a share in the business itself. All of which he has realized.

Now—

If the giving up of a seventy-five dollar job for a forty dollar job excites amusement, what shall be said of a young man who voluntarily resigned a position that was paying him $6,000 a month?

Who did it?

Hugh Chalmers began with the National Cash Register company as an office boy. In twelve years he had climbed to the top.

At the age of twenty-nine years Chalmers was drawing a salary of $72,000 a year, the largest ever paid an advertising manager.

And he resigned this big salary to go into business for himself.

"What?" says our young man.

"Why, a year or two of that job would be plenty for me."

Yes, but don't you see, young man, that with your disposition to be satisfied with a job you would never be able to climb up to $72,000 a year in the first place?

Hugh Chalmers at twenty-nine didn't want to give up his outlook for a job, and he felt that he couldn't preserve his outlook except by going into a business of his own.

Do you see?

Take a photograph of your future.
Find out where you propose to get off.
Go into business for yourself sooner or later, even if you go in small. To do that you may have to exchange larger wages for small or resign your job un-derly.

Your job is not the end. It is only the means to the end. If you can't reach your end by means of the job, try another or let it go.

Keep an eye on your outlook.

FIND WORKINGMAN ON A COW CATCHER

Train Reaches Sheboygan With Strange Load on the Front of the Engine.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Sheboygan, Wis., Nov. 10.—John Yanickom was found on the cow-catcher of train No. 409, when it pulled into Sheboygan Falls at 2:25 Tuesday afternoon, on the point of death. He wore pants guards and on his back was strapped his dinner pail.
At Riverside, two miles behind, he had been struck by the engine while riding his wheel. The engineer and fireman did not know of his presence until he was seen at the Sheboygan Falls station.

There he was taken into the station and physicians called. On examination it was found that his skull was crushed and his head badly injured. He died a few minutes later.

Yanickom leaves a wife and three small children living in Sheboygan.
He was employed at the plant of the J. M. Kohler Sons company and was probably on his way home at the time of the accident. The coroner was called and a jury empaneled. An inquest was held Wednesday.

The cowcatcher picked him up after he was struck, it seems, and in some unaccountable manner his arm was caught, holding him. His bicycle was found on the road at Riverside, badly damaged.

Louis Goldbeck is the mysterious chicken thief who for the past several years has been keeping chicken raucers in the lookout. He was caught in the tolls through the efforts of his wife who wrote a note to the police, pointing him out as the guilty one.
Goldbeck is not a man who craves for the juicy spring chicken. No, he went into the business with pecuniary aims. "The chickens he stole he sold to various meat markets."

But on balancing his accounts he will probably find the chicken business is a losing proposition. The chief item on his books will be a loss of $75.00 and costs, in all $84.85.

THE COST OF LIVING
A writer for an eastern trade journal has this to say about the cost of living. It is so true to conditions that it is well worth reading:
"Every other minute somebody pops up to tell us how much more it costs to live nowadays than it did say ten or twenty-five years ago. They say it takes all a man can earn to keep soul and body together, and there is no joy in living. These earnest complainers can back up their statements by such solid and incontrovertible arguments as pork, 20 cents a pound; eggs, 40 cents a dozen; butter, 40 copper bits for a scant sixteen ounces; milk, 8 cents or more a quart; beefsteak, as high as the market man's conscience allows him to charge.
"When it comes to clothing, millinery and shoes, the exhibits in the case are equally impressive. Granting the truth of these assertions, the fact remains that the reason it is so hard for the average man to keep his head above water, is because what were once considered luxuries are now counted stern necessities, and the cause for the general run of married men's early silvering or loss of their hair and vigor is the struggle to maintain their families in the extravagant manner they have acquired.
"In the old days, families thrived, flourished and attained honor, fame, dollars, contentment, comfort and respect on a simple diet composed largely of such highly diluted but cheap articles as beans, cornmeal mush, oatmeal porridge, soups, bread, potatoes, pork, fish, pot roasts, stews and a host of other savory eatables which were low in price but required more skill and time to prepare properly than the modern housewife cares to give. Are we satisfied with such diet now? No, sir, never. Now we turn up our noses at anything less than sirloins, leg of lamb, mushrooms, etc.
"We demand fruits and vegetables, not in season, when plenty and cheap—then we don't want them—but out of season, when it takes a connoisseur to tell the difference between a strawberry and tomato if eaten without the evidence of the eyes then it is we insist upon having them, and we pay the piper accordingly. No wonder the grocery bills for a family make the man of the house grow pale round the gills. The high prices of food would not trouble us were we content to subsist as our good old granddaddy did.
"Unless we are ready to go back to wearing clothes such as the makers of history did, it were wiser not to harp so much on the matter of cost. Years ago a man got a new suit when he needed it and wore it summer and winter till it simply refused to longer hang together. Now he has to get a suit for business, one for around the house, formal occasions, informal occasions, vacation, spring, summer, fall and winter, and the Lord knows what all. Certainly the Gibson man of today is a decidedly better looking specimen than was his ancestor of homespun and hobnail boots, and is much pleasanter to contemplate, but you can't put on style without paying for it. In women's clothes the difference between then and now is so very marked that no odious comparisons need be made. The same is true with the children. Nobody short of a millionaire has any business to raise children. They cost a big fortune, every one of them, and raise suicide has a very tangible excuse for being.

"And so it goes throughout the whole scale of existence. Who wants to bother with drowsy, washdubs, keroseene lamps, wells, etc., nowadays? Now the poorest day laborer revels in electricity, steam heat, nimbled the bathrooms, hot and cold water apparatus, shower baths, washing machines, etc. You can't have these things on air, and if you spend money on them there is so much less to be heard, naturally. Now we have lace curtains, Oriental rugs, diamond rings, automobiles, and all the trappings of goods and chattels that make life worth living—and accordingly expensive.
"We have to maintain bungalows and motor boats, take long vacations and go abroad for our health. We don't like quite so much hard work, either, as fell to the lot of our granddaddies, and instead of teaching ourselves and our children the grand old art of doing without, we are brought up to think that nothing is too good for us, and that if we don't gather in all the good things of this jolly earth and the fullness thereof, we are being defrauded of our birthrights. Certainly it costs more to live in 1909 than it did in 1899, but let us give thanks for the Lord it's worth all it costs. Perhaps."

Someone recently used this argument for the commission plan of government. It is a good one: "After having tried the plan of being governed by elected officials for a century or so, we find that about one-tenth of our officials—the conspicuous ones—are held accountable by the people. The other nine-tenths telephone the boss for advice before taking action. Why not let the first tenth appoint the rest and hold them responsible? The less work the people are called on to do, the less they will have to rely on politicians for guidance."
The concerted effort on the part of insurgents to discredit President Taft's administration, has been recognized by the cabinet, and will be discussed by the president on his return to Washington. The Chicago Tribune and several papers of minor importance, aided by a string of muckraking magazines, are busily engaged in disseminating disloyalty. President Taft is good natured, but abundantly able to defend himself and the people are with him.
Young Mr. Lewis of Racine wants to be governor, and he don't hesitate to say so. Moreover he has the price necessary to compete in a primary race, and that is an important asset. There is no reason why Mr. Lewis should not be given an opportunity to spend his money. He is better known as a football player than as a statesman, but that is not his fault. Give the boy a chance.
The Twilight club members may have been hypnotized into the belief that Janesville streets are all boulevards, and that the money spent has been well invested, but it's all a dream. Aside from a mile of brick pavement and the Court Street bridge there's nothing to be proud of.
The nearness of the moon to the earth has so increased the earth's electrical capacity that cable messages, which usually require 20 minutes in sending, now occupy 20 to 25 minutes. The delay seriously interferes with the New York stock exchange, with no remedy in sight.
At Winthrop, on the Canadian Pacific, 3,359 freight cars were handled in 24 hours, one day last week, equivalent to a solid train 31 miles long. Canadian wheat is on the move just now, and railroads are taxed to the limit.

PRESS COMMENT.
After Trouble.
The Menasha Record wants to get hold of that man who said there was no Indian summer and asks, "Where is that scientific man who said there was no such thing as Indian summer? Send him up here, we will show him."
Perhaps So.
The Eau Claire Leader jokes fun at the Wisconsin water power commission by asking that "An Oshkosh explorer has found a 364 foot water fall up in Labrador. Wonder if the Wisconsin water power commission will include that in its report."
Good Recommendation.
The Milwaukee Sentinel toots the horn for Wisconsin brides when it says that "After the alleged desertion of four Wisconsin wives and wedding a Pennsylvania woman, the man held at Watoma came back for another badger bride. Speaks for itself."
Another Canard.
The Green Bay Gazette has discovered that "It is said that there is a movement on foot at the present time, credited to the Stephenson people, to delay the calling of the special session of the legislature until April."
Look Out, Certainly.
The Wausau Record-Herald suggests that "After next Thursday it will behoove every one to keep out of the woods unless he has business therein, and then clad in clothes, which show that he is not a deer nor even a rabbit." Complaints of Water.
The Appleton Post says that "Even during the worst days of the 'seeds' last summer the water in Lake Winnebago and the Fox river never looked as bad as it does now. It is a sort of greenish-blue-milky color that suggests all sorts of rottenness."
An Optimistic View.
The Fond du Lac Commonwealth discovers that "The announcement to the effect that the Soo car shops are now employing twenty per cent more than at any previous time in their history, makes good reading for the people of Fond du Lac and vicinity. It is news of this sort that inspires confidence and breeds optimism."

Here's a Chance.
According to the Cleveland Leader there is an excellent opportunity for some enterprising diplomat to win the lasting gratitude of the Dons if he could show Spain how to withdraw from the Morocco trouble. The idea is conveyed in the following: "Spain would probably be willing to pay a large reward for any plans of withdrawing from Morocco which would cost neither trade nor prestige nor hurt the national pride of the Spanish people."
Asks the Date.
New Orleans Times-Democrat says that "An English prophet has been predicting another war between Russia and Japan. That has been apparent since the Portsmouth episode. What the public desires to know is the date."
He Shows It.
The Washington Star says that "Diaz always starts with a good lead in any contest. No one knows the game of Mexican politics as well as he does."
War at Home.
The Republican of Springfield has the idea that "Russia is having a 'war game,' with St. Petersburg as the point of attack. The veterans of the late war who retired from Mukden will be able to show how the retreat should be conducted if the defense is not successful."

When I hear a noble singer reeling off entrancing noise, then I bend in admiration, and his music never ceases. And I feel a high ambition as a singer to excel, and I put my voice in training, and I prance around and yell; oh, I dish up trills and warbles, and I think, throughout the day, that I'll have Caruso faded ere a month has rolled away. Then the neighbors come and see me, and they give me stern reproach, saying I am worse than forty yellow cats upon the roof. When I see a splendid painting it appeals to brain and heart, and I blow myself for brushes and decide to follow art. With a can of yellow ochre and a jug of turpentine, I produce some masterpieces that would make old Rubens pine, and I talk about Perspective and the whiteness of the whence, till a neighbor comes and asks me what I'll take to paint his fence. When I read a rattling volume I invest in pens and ink, and prepare to write some chapters that will make the nation think; and I rear some Vandyke whiskers and neglect to cut my hair, and I read up Bulwer Lytton for some good old

A Sale of Furs
That Many Women Have Been Waiting For Friday and Saturday,
Nov. 12th and 13th
The representative of the Great Fur House of Wm. H. Miller & Co., of Detroit, will be with us with Miller's extensive line of Furs. The House of Miller & Co. has grown to be the largest all around fur house in America. They deal in a high grade of Furs. By "high" we mean reliable, dependable furs THAT THEY CAN GUARANTEE, but not high in price. Before buying Furs we went over the ground thoroughly and MILLER was the only House in our judgment, backed by many years of fur buying—we say the only house that could deliver the goods. Their assortments were the largest, their variety the greatest, their prices the lowest commensurate with good qualities. The agent will have with him, all of the popular furs and will deliver any price selected, also be prepared to take special measures for fur garments. It is not necessary to go into further details, as the furs will show for themselves. A specialty will be made of fine fur sets and fur coats.

COUNTY CASH TO STAY IN BELOIT

JANEVILLE BANKS OFFERED BUT TWO PER CENT.

PINKERTONS WILL BE PAID

$264.28 for Services in Cronin, Bidwell & Miller, and Blind Pig Investigations—County Board Session.

At the session of the county board this forenoon Supervisor W. E. Shoemaker, chairman of the finance committee, opened the bids submitted by various banks for the custody of the $26,000 or more county funds. The bid of the First National Bank, which offered to pay 3 1/2 per cent interest to be computed on daily balances and credited at the end of each month. The four Janesville banks jointly offered to pay 2 per cent under the same conditions. On motion the Beloit banks were made the official depositories for the forthcoming fiscal year.

Surgeon Sadly Misused.

Dr. C. S. Darby of Broadhead who claimed to have been called to assist Dr. Fairman in amputating an arm for Harry Bates, injured in a corn shredder seven miles from that city on Jan. 13, and to have actually performed the operation, was permitted to address the board. It appeared that Dr. Fairman had agreed to pay Dr. Darby a $25 charge for his services in the bill which he submitted to the board but, owing to some ill-feeling which had subsequently arisen between the two practitioners, failed to do so. The board, upon motion, authorized Postmaster A. P. Anderson to pay the same when a satisfactory itemized statement should be submitted. Conditions had been complied with, the settlement, and Dr. Darby left out in the cold. A motion to pay the latter $25 was introduced but $5 of the amount was shaved off by an amendment to make the amount approximate a half share in the county board's scheduled rate of $40 for such operations. The motion was carried by a vote of 22 to 6.

Detective Services.

Supervisor Simon Smith of Committee 10, in behalf of himself and associates, referred a budget of special bills for detective services, etc., to the board without commendation and requested District Attorney J. L. Fisher to state why they should be paid. The latter explained that the statement of $264.28 for services rendered relative to two houses—one of $184.50 for an investigation of five "blind pigs" in the county—one at Footville, one at Milton Junction, one at Milton, and two in Johnston. The other item of $79.72 was for services rendered in running down a supposed clue to the Cronin murderer. The blind pig investigations had been highly successful, the Milton man one of the Johnston offenders surrendering their government licenses and the other Johnston man leaving the country. The Park hotel board bill of $64.67 was for the star witness against George Bidwell and William Miller, who came here from Chicago to visit with her boy who was boarding at the Midway home and who, being unable to furnish a bond, had to be detained here forty-two days in order to make certain of her appearance at the trial, after the case had been taken to circuit court on an affidavit of probable cause. The district attorney called attention to the fact that just prior to this investigation and prosecution $1,000 worth of butter had been stolen from the railroad company in Rock county and seven-ton live calves had been stolen between Milton and Chicago in a single evening. There was also a small board bill from the Grand hotel for Raymond and McKinney, who came here voluntarily to submit to an investigation regarding their supposed possible connection with the Cronin murder case. The county board had set aside a fund of $200 to be used in criminal investigations and a portion of this sum had been used with the consent of Supervisor M. E. Richardson, John Fuller, and P. E. Lovejoy, who were appointed as the special administrators of the money. Expenses incurred by Officer William Mason had been paid therefrom and most of the amount had been used up. The bills were referred to the committee after a discussion and will doubtless be allowed.

This afternoon the building committee reported regarding a proposed enlargement of the county home and Architect W. H. Blair discussed plans. A resolution introduced by Supervisor W. W. Swingle and providing for the appropriation by that portion of the county outside of the cities and villages which build their own bridges of $2,366.65, one half of the cost of building the new bridge across Turtle creek in Section 30—known as the Milwaukee road bridge, was under discussion at three o'clock.

Licenses Money Demanded.

By a motion passed by the supervisors last yesterday afternoon District Attorney J. L. Fisher was instructed to take steps to compel the cities of Janesville and Beloit to turn over the county's $50 share of each of the said municipalities. Information was introduced to show that there are 12 taverns in Janesville, 23 in Beloit; 3 in Oregon; 3 in Clinton; and 1 in that town of Janesville. It appeared that the proper city officials in both instances had been reminded of the delinquency but had done nothing about it beyond explaining that the obligations would be met in due time. County Treasurer Church also called attention to the fact that Beloit had not, for five years past, turned over any portion of the tax assessed for the interurban railroad, as required by law. About $213 was due, Janesville, except in the year 1900, had always come to the front. A committee consisting of M. P. Richardson, Simon Smith, and W. D. Sherman was appointed to investigate the Beloit shortage.

Committee on Salaries.

Supervisors J. C. McIlvay, W. D. Maxson, and A. C. Gray were named by the chair as a committee to investigate the work performed by the various county officials and the salaries paid therefor, and to make recommendations regarding any advisable raises and cuts. The term of Poor Commissioner George Seegmiller, who is on duty in the southern section of the county, was particularly requested to inquire into the amount of work done by the incumbent of that office and ascertain what the proper emoluments should be.

Nelson Unanimous Choice.

L. M. Nelson was re-elected janitor of the court house by a unanimous vote.

C. E. Langworthy who has been trustee of the county asylum for the past three years was named to succeed himself.

SHORT $2,000,000; ARREST WARRINER

DIG FOUR OFFICIALS ADMIT WARRINER DEFALCATION IS ENORMOUS.

MYSTERY WHERE ALL WENT

Alleged Blackmail and Speculative Losses Do Not Account Fully for the Large Amount—First Estimates Too Conservative.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—The alleged blackmailer of Charles L. Warriner, former local treasurer of the Big Four Railroad Company, who is accused of embezzling $4,130,000, will be dealt with by the state authorities. County Prosecutor Hunt stated that he had investigated the charges made by Warriner against a man and a woman and that he was unable to collect sufficient evidence. In the meantime, apparently well founded reports maintain that the Warriner defalcation are far in excess of the sum mentioned by Vice-President Harris of the New York Central, and that they may exceed $1,000,000, and may possibly reach $2,000,000. These reports are supported by the fact that the railroad officials caused Warriner's arrest on a charge of embezzling $54,000 and, pressed later, admitted that the amount would be at least $100,000.

Mystery Where It All Went.
Officials of the Big Four admit that they are not satisfied at the revelations by Warriner and they are pressing him for additional details of how he spent the money, the sums alleged to have been paid in blackmail and lost in unprofitable speculation leaving a large amount for which there is no accounting.

Warriner asserts that he has not a dollar left, the transfer to the railroad company of his home and stocks of various corporations in which he was interested having made him penniless.

The search for the man and woman whom Warriner has named in connection with the alleged blackmailing of him out of many thousands of dollars, it is stated, is being concluded here, in Chicago, in Portsmouth, O., the former home of the woman mentioned, and in other cities, but so far no additional arrests have been made and conflicting statements are made by those in charge of the case as to the probability of other arrests soon.

No Other Arrests Contemplated.
Attorney Goldsmith, law partner of Gov. Harmon and one of the counsel for the Big Four, is authority for the statement that at present, arrests are contemplated at no other.

Mr. Goldsmith also gave out a statement saying that the Big Four would prosecute Warriner, to the limit and that in this the road would have the vigorous support of the bonding company, which has paid in $50,000 on the Warriner alleged shortage.

Warriner, who was released Saturday on a $20,000 bond, is said to be doing everything possible to identify and locate those who, he asserts, extorted money from him to prevent exposure. Railroad officials have heard from Warriner a circumstantial story of the alleged extortion and those implicated, including a man and a woman, are said to be watched day and night by detectives. The railroad, it is asserted will cause arrests as soon as convinced that the facts will justify prosecution.

Loss Will Reach $500,000.

New York, Nov. 10.—The loss to the Big Four railroad through the alleged defalcation of C. L. Warriner, its local treasurer at Cincinnati, ultimately will amount to about $500,000, according to a statement issued in New York by Albert H. Harris, vice-president of the New York Central, which, including the Big Four.

"The amount of the defalcation," says the statement, "has been ascertained to be $413,000. Warriner has turned over to the company property amounting to more than $100,000, and there will be received from the surety company on its bond $50,000, leaving the net amount of the shortage something less than $500,000."

"The method which Warriner adopted was to cover his defalcations in the item of 'cash in transit.' At the end of each month there are considerable sums of money on their way to the local treasurer from station agents and others which have not been received by him. It was by including in this from the money he had stolen that he was enabled to conceal his defalcations."

CLASH WITH JUDGES IN CHICAGO COURT

WAYMAN IS GIVEN HINT TO RETIRE FROM JURY QUIZ.

WHITWASH CHARGE IS CAUSE

Jurists Want Explanation of Remark Laid to Assistant State's Attorney Michaels That They Would Whitewash Venno Body.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—At the end of a day of clashes with the judges who are investigating his charges of irregularities in the jury commissioners' office, State's Attorney Wayman answered the repeated demands that he prove his assertions with this statement:

"I will introduce evidence of things not only possible, but actually done."

The judges protested that Mr. Wayman had made many baseless charges without showing anything to support them, but granted him another day to put in his evidence.

Chief Clerk Roswell H. Mason will be put on the stand and asked to testify to the statements he made before the grand jury a month ago. The judges' committee will then adjourn until next week.

Remarkable Scene Ensues.

When the jury commission investigation was resumed by Judges Barnes, Honore and Hinaker, following the sensational postponement last week, a remarkable scene followed during which State's Attorney Wayman was asked whether the investigation could go on without his presence. This followed the question as to whether Assistant State's Attorney Michaels gave out the interview referred to in which it was charged the judges meant to use "seven nice little whitewash brushes."

Both Mr. Wayman and Mr. Michaels refused to answer, and the state's attorney protested that "this committee has no right, in an investigation of this character, to take up collateral matter."

Remarks Insulting.

"We certainly have such a right," exclaimed Judge Honore, sharply. "The remarks attributed to the assistant state's attorney are contemptuous and insulting to each of the members of this committee. We represent the 28 judges of record in Cook county, and if we were sitting in regular court instead of in this quasi-judicial capacity, I have no hesitancy in saying that such an expression would bring a sentence for contempt."

"We only ask that the state's attorney or his assistant say to us that the quotation is incorrect, and then we will be ready to proceed."

"I am here to present further evidence as to corruption in the office of the jury commission," retorted Mr. Wayman, and Mr. Michaels is here to assist me. We are not here to consider newspaper reports."

Hint to Wayman.

Judge Honore then asked Mr. Wayman whether the investigation could not proceed as well without his presence.

Mr. Wayman gasped. "I am here by invitation of the judges," he said at length. "If they feel I have worn out my welcome I will go."

"The committee feels it should not at all the evidence possible. If your presence appears to you to be absolutely essential, we will consider it."

RAILROADERS WANT BETTER PAY

Trainmen Are Asking for Heavy Increase in Wages.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—What labor leaders declare is the most far-reaching step ever attempted in the history of organized labor is the threatened demand for uniform schedules and a wage increase of about 12 per cent. by the conductors and trainmen on railroads entering Chicago from the east. At the same time, switchmen and yardmen in this city numbering 3,000, members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, have asked for five cents an hour increase.

Switchmen and yardmen of St. Paul and Minneapolis have asked for six cents increase.

Steps are being taken by locomotive firemen on all roads west of Chicago to have existing schedules opened and are seeking an increase.

In Chicago railroad circles the preliminary rumblings of the approaching labor storm are heard with uniform indifference and unconcern. No official of any of the great trunk or granger lines could be found who would express himself as the least bit fearful of the outcome of the present agitation.

Practically every railroad man, in denying that there was any truth in the reported wage demands, insisted that the roads were not in condition to pay out more money than at present.

Cuts Duty for Chinese Hog.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The treasury department has allowed a drawback of 99 cents on the dollar duty on oriental bristles for carport sweepers. The hog of the Chinese empire sends half of the bristles imported into this country. Altogether 1,363,248 pounds of Chinese bristles were brought in during 1908. The duty is 7½ cents a pound.

Bank Cashier Is Accused.

Columbus, O., Nov. 10.—George H. Osborne, for 35 years cashier of the Huntington bank, was arrested on the charge of being short in his accounts. The amount involved is unknown.

SCENE IN "A GENTLEMAN FROM MISSISSIPPI," MYERS, TOMORROW

Miss Evelyn Moore, of "A Gentleman from Mississippi" Company, who is an enthusiastic rose culturist, has received word from a fellow worshiper of the queenly flower that a new and novel blossom has been added to the already numerous family of the rose. The latest creation is a flower possessing somewhat the shape of the favorite Killarney rose, but in color the petals are of a deep salmon pink shading to deep red at the edges. Its propagator is a Stellan gentleman living right on the slope of Mount Asnia where he has an extensive rose garden in which are specimens from almost every country on earth. Miss Moore will have a number of plants sent to her this fall and hopes to place the new flower on exhibition next summer. Miss Evelyn Watson, who plays the typewriter girl in "A Gentleman from Mississippi" is not only an expert on that instrument, but is also an ex-newspaper woman and the author of a number of sketches which have appeared from time to time in various periodicals. Some years ago she made an extensive tour through Old Mexico and spent some time investigating the buried cities of the southern portion of that "Egypt of America." She has an interesting book of her travels almost complete and is also working on a novel, the theme of which will be a romance of the ancient Aztecs. "A Gentleman from Mississippi" will be presented at Myers theatre Thursday, Nov. 11.

GOTCH THROWS RAICEVICH.
Italian No Match for Champion of World.

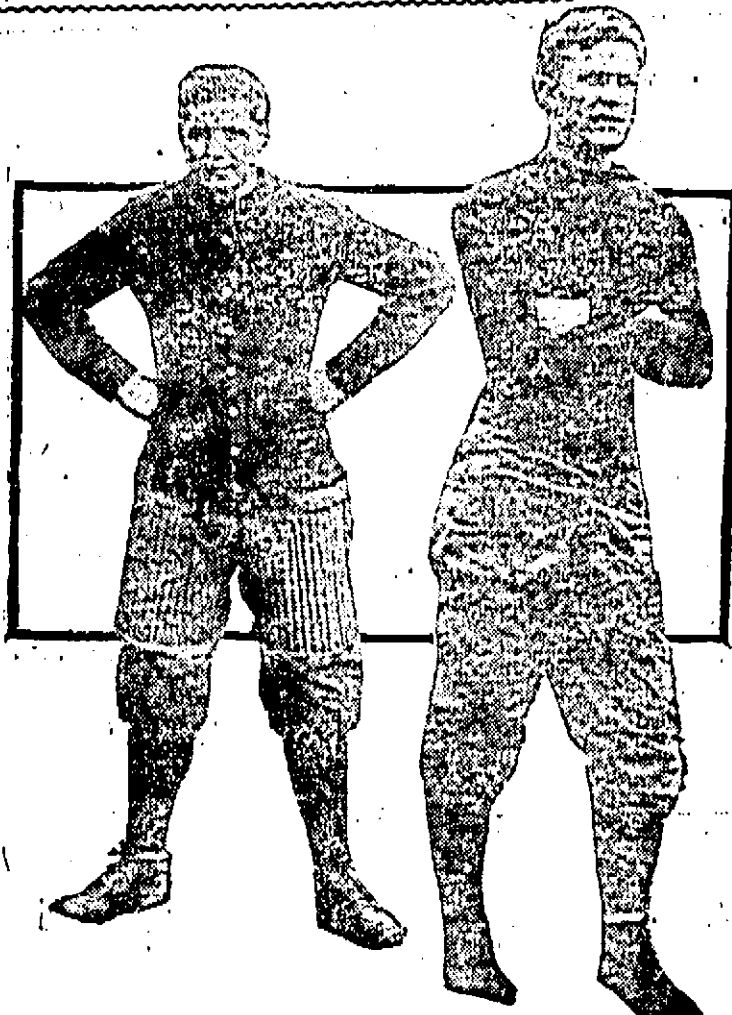

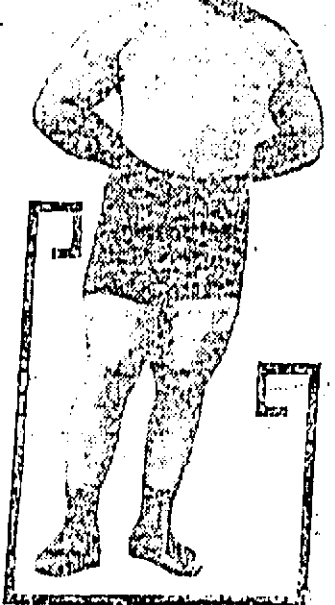

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Frank Gotch, champion wrestler of the world, defeated Giovanni Raicevich, the Italian champion, in two falls last night at the Coliseum before an immense crowd. Gotch secured the first fall by a croch and arm-lock hold in 16 minutes and 28 seconds.

The second fall was obtained in much quicker time, the Iowa man throwing the Italian by a cross-body hammer and wrist-lock hold in 5:25.

Frank A. Gotch was served with a summons in a breach of promise suit for $25,000, filed by Miss Sadie Currie, just before he went on the mat at the Coliseum.

At the same hour his engagement to Miss Minnie Warner, a telephone operator for the Western Unionville Managers' association, was reported by friends of that young woman.

Gotch denied both marriage promises to Miss Currie and to Miss Warner.

Have You Tried?

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? We can furnish positive proof that it has made many remarkable cures after all other means had failed.

Women who are suffering with some form of female illness should consider this.

As such evidence read these two unsolicited testimonial letters. We guarantee they are genuine and honest statements of facts.

Gardner, Maine.—"I was a great sufferer from a female disease and weakness. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation but I could not bear to think of it. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me in three months."—Mrs. S. A. Williams, R.F.D. No. 14, Box 30, Gardner, Me.

So, West Harbor, Me.—"I suffered for years with painful periods, backache, headaches, nervousness, irregularities and inflammation. I consulted two physicians and one advised me to have an operation. I was completely discouraged when I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has made me a well woman. I advise all suffering women to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Lillian Robbins, South West Harbor, Me.

Evidence like the above is abundant showing that the derangements of the female organism which breed all kinds of miserable feelings and which ordinary practice does not cure, are the very disorders that give way to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who are afflicted with similar troubles, after reading two such letters as the above, should be encouraged to try this wonderfully helpful remedy.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ill. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

VAN HISE GAVE HIS VIEWS ON SUBJECT

President of the University Urges Establishment of Trade and Agricultural Schools.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 10.—The need of trade schools in every city, the necessity for many additional county agricultural schools, and the importance of consolidating rural schools to improve their condition was urged by President Charles R. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin at the dedication of the new normal school here this afternoon.

"It is generally admitted that the most defective part of our educational system at present is the rural school," said President Van Hise, "this I believe is undoubtedly as long as the district system is maintained. Rural schools can only be put on a satisfactory basis by consolidation of the districts into larger units. In this state the county unit has been proposed. Whether or not this is the form consolidation should take, the fact remains that children of the country districts must be brought together in large graded schools if they are to be given effective instruction."

Trade Schools for Every City
"The other important development of our public school system that must be provided for is the trade school. As yet we have only begun to realize the importance of such schools in Wisconsin. A municipal trade school has recently been established in Milwaukee. Trade schools of agriculture have been established in a number of counties. But when the real need of training a large number of boys and girls for useful occupations is considered, the present provisions are wholly inadequate. Every municipality should have a trade school, and most of the counties of the state need agricultural training schools."

Wisconsin System is Strong
After pointing out these needs of the Wisconsin system of education, President Van Hise went on to show that the organization and relation of the existing schools was in many respects a most effective one. One important reason for this, he said, is the fact that there is no overlapping, no duplication of work. Each part of the system, from the kindergarten to the university, has been provided to do a specific part of the educational work of the state and ought not to be permitted to encroach upon another part. Cooperation, not rivalry, should be the ideal relation between the several parts of the school system.

Schools and Colleges Co-Operate.
Grant progress has already been made, the speaker pointed out, toward such cooperation in the relation of the mining trade school and the agricultural county schools to the university, and of the normal schools to the university through the four years' course in the training of teachers. Not only has there been coordination and co-operation between the public institutions, but similar unobtainable ties have been established between the university and the private institutions, such as the colleges and academies.

Present System Should Be Continued.
"The state of Wisconsin is extremely fortunate and very exceptional in having no overlapping of work and such a degree of co-operation of existing agencies," said President Van Hise. "It is clear that development in the future should be on the line of the principles of the past. In the future development of the trade schools, agricultural schools, normal schools, and the university, those principles of co-operation and co-ordination should be the guiding ones, and needless duplication of work be thus prevented."

Gov. William Kitchen of North Carolina.

William Walton Kitchen, present governor of North Carolina, is taking an active part in the reorganization work of his party. Governor Kitchen is being mentioned in the same breath as Governor Harmon of Ohio and Governor Marshall of Indiana in founding a new Democratic organization. Governor Kitchen first came before the public when he was elected congressman. He was a lawyer by profession. He was born near Scotland Neck, N. C., October 9, 1863. He graduated from Wake Forest college in 1884. As editor of the Scotland Neck Democrat he became an influential factor in party organization, studied law while running the newspaper and was admitted to the bar in 1887. His home is at Roxboro, where he practiced until elected governor.

HERBERT PARSONS.
New York Republicans are taking an especial interest in the aggressive work of Herbert Parsons. He is rapidly becoming one of the most popular men in New York. His political career began as an alderman and his rise has been rapid. He was born in New York in 1869, and entered school at Concord, N. H. When his academic training was completed he entered Yale, graduating with the degree of bachelor of arts in 1890. He spent one year at the University of Berlin and then entered Harvard law school. When his education was completed two years later, he married Elsie Worthington Clews of Newport. He was admitted to the bar in politics and in 1905 went to congress from the New York district. Mr. Parsons is philanthropic in his ideas and his charities are numerous. He is a member of the board of managers of the New York association for improving the conditions of the poor, and is a worker in the Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents.

Secretary of War, Jacob M. Dickins.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 5.—Secretary of War, Jacob M. Dickins, declares his willingness to forsake the cabinet and enter the race for United States senator if Tennessee Democracy will agree to bury the hatchet. In an interview Secretary Dickins said that he would give the country no unnecessary spectacle of a cabinet officer making a scramble for office, but if this nomination should be proffered him he would make no race. Secretary Dickins is a southern gentleman by birth and his winning personality made him a factor in politics from early manhood. He was born at Columbus, Miss., January 30, 1851. He graduated at the University of Nashville and entered Columbia law school at the University of Leipzig in Germany. On his return to Nashville he was admitted to the bar and built up a successful practice. He served on the supreme bench. Later he became assistant attorney general of the United States.

STREET PROBLEM

tion, the fact was brought out that South Main street is still unpaved although the improvement was ordered by the council over a year ago.

Leaving the subject of brick pavement, the speaker turned his attention to macadam which is the most popular form of stone pavement.
Rockford and Madison have used macadam almost exclusively on residence streets. At the present time this city has about 4.18 miles of macadam road built at a cost of about $70,000.
"Macadam pavement affords a good footpath for horses, affords little resistance to travel, is comparatively noiseless, and in first cost, and the money spent in its construction is kept at home. But it has the serious defect of becoming muddy when wet, dusty when dry, is not easily kept clean and is expensive to keep up.
However, it costs less for continuous attention than for deferred repairs.
In this respect, our macadam streets have been sadly neglected. They have also suffered greatly from being torn up for the laying of sewer pipes and have been injured by excessive sprinkling."

Mr. Kereh then brought his address to a close by mentioning a revolution that has taken place in the cure of macadam streets by the common use of the asphaltum which necessitates the mud and asphaltum dressings.
The fact was also brought out that in the matter of special assessments for street improvements, citizens have suffered easily as compared with other cities, notably Madison, where the assessment per front foot went as high as $8.

Following the city engineer's speech, there was a spirited debate between different members. To uphold the assertion that constant attention is cheaper than delayed repairs, George S. Parker cited the case of the street upon which his residence abuts, where two feet of gravel road has been kept in shape for five years at an expenditure of a little over $25. L. F. Wortensky, one of the most ardent supporters of tar as a road dressing, gave some details regarding its application and cited some of its advantages.

"Although a pavement treated with this compound will not stand heavy traffic, tar, in some of its shapes as a road dressing, is the only salvation of our streets in the residence and outlying sections."

A new and hitherto unmentioned difficulty in regard to this subject under discussion was brought out by Alderman Frank Kimball. He agreed with the others on the proposition to make the abutting property pay for the improvements with some qualifications, but denied that the members of the council were lax in the matter of forcing plumbers to fill trenches properly.

"While I do not doubt that many are in favor of taxes to improve the streets," said Mr. Kimball, "the fact must not be forgotten that there are many citizens of this city who have neither horses nor carriages and who do not want the streets improved.
These people are not slow in expressing their disapproval to the aldermen of their ward. We cannot improve the city without money and every year the cry goes up for lower taxes."

Mr. Kimball did not concur in Dr.
Dewight's assertion that country roads were better than those of the city and gave some instances both in Be-loft and Rock County. Alderman Evans also upheld his colleague's views and offered to show anyone interested some streets in Beloit and roads in Rock County that would equal the worst that this city had to offer.

City Treasurer James Paters was next called upon to give his opinion with regard to the financial end of street improvement. Mr. Paters could not by any stretch of the imagination be convicted of a desire to let the aldermen pay for street improvement and put himself on record as being against it. He also had a good word to say for tar dressing on macadam.

"There are no many kinds of pavement," said these speakers, "and Mayor Carl who called upon to express his views. His honor did not agree with Dr. Dwight as to the excellent condition of the country roads and stated that if they had to undergo the upheavals that city streets are subjected to by plumbers and the agents of public utilities engaged in laying mains, they would be rough and hard to navigate with an automobile. He was also opposed to the practice of compelling the owners of adjacent property to pay the entire cost of street improvements and gave a case in point to justify his stand. A brick pavement laid in front of a business block would amount to perhaps one per cent of the assessed value of the property, while the same pavement in front of a residence would be at least ten percent—a manifest injustice. Attorney John Cunningham also ranged himself on the side of those who opposed the present special assessment system.
To explain the reasons for his opposition he gave an instance where one property-owner on East Milwaukee street was compelled to pay $1,700 for brick paving in front of some vacant lots, while his neighbor did not pay a penny, but enjoyed the same advantages as did all those who entered the city from the country by that road.
According to Commissioner of Highways H. L. Skavlem, who was next on the regular program, a misunderstanding with regard to his subject left him somewhat unprepared to explain "What Country Roads Would be for Janesville," as he had thought that he would be asked to expound the relation of country roads to Janesville.
"The original subject gives an opportunity for any amount of theory, but during the past few years I have given up theorizing and taken to building—a much harder task. In fact, since I took to the practical task, I find that I begin to know less and less as the work proceeds. That is, less and less than I originally thought I knew. It is an easy thing to build good roads if you have good material and a barrel of money. But to build good roads under the present conditions and keep them in repair is a task that will tax anyone's ability.
Mr. Skavlem then asked to be allowed to express his opinion as a citizen and not as a county official. He touched on the difficulty of getting good material at a reasonable cost and deplored the almost impossible feat of getting the city to take care brought out the fact that under a sharper and more compact form of government, with a few practical men who could give their whole attention to supervising the city's affairs, a few of the roads after they were once constructed. In this connection he great deal more could be accomplished than at the present time.

"I think the commission form of city government would do away with a great deal of this waste of the city's funds in useless repairs. At least, it can be no worse than the present system."

Thus far the speakers had all been citizens of Janesville, but the last two who addressed the meeting were citizens of Beloit. It is generally admitted that in some respects the streets of the Lino City are far in advance of Janesville's, and as a result the two gentlemen from Beloit were listened to with great attention in the hope that Janesville might learn from the experience of a city that has labored under almost the same difficulties as are being experienced here.

E. F. Hanson, former alderman and member of the first Board of Public Works in Beloit, was first to speak and although he expressed the feeling that he had been mistaken for his town brethren, who he protested was better qualified to speak, he showed a thorough knowledge of his subject and also demonstrated one reason why Beloit has good streets, and that is good supervisors to start the work right. Mr. Hanson's address partook of the nature of a history of Beloit's street improvements, from the time the first load of gravel was taken from the hillsides up to the adoption of the brick block pavement. Beloit is naturally favored by nature for good streets, but mistakes—the use of broken stone and crushed gravel, for instance—were made, although the Lino City fathers profited by Janes-ville's unfortunate trial of the Michigon block pavement. Outside of the difficulty experienced in finding proper material, Mr. Hanson stated that the greatest trouble was in keeping the streets in good condition after they had been laid out for the maintenance of public utilities. At the present time Beloit has 25 miles of water mains, 30 of gas, 8 of sewer and 5 of storm sewer. All these improvements have resulted in the upheaval of the streets. At the present time, however, the plan of installing all mains and laterals for water, gas, etc., before the street improvements are made, is followed, and as a result the pavement remains in good condition for a much longer period than heretofore.
Unlike the citizens of this city, Beloit residents are anxious to have their highways improved and in more than one instance have petitioned for improvements before water, gas and sewer mains have been put in.

R. K. Caldwell, city engineer of Be-loft, was the last one to speak, and although his address was not long, he spent considerable time answering questions regarding the methods and materials used in the Lino City.
He explained how it came about that the brick block pavement used so extensively was so successful and how the material gravel foundation added to its cheapness and wearing qualities. In answer to questions by his hearers he gave some facts in regard to the wearing qualities of creosote blocks, where Southern Pine and Tamarack blocks are imprugnated with creosote under heavy pressure and cited the case of the pavement at Rush street bridge in Chicago where these blocks showed no signs of wear after nine years of service at a point where 30,000 teams move daily. When asked concerning Beloit's new experiment along the line of macadamized streets, he gave a detailed account as regards the cost, amount of material used and the manner in which the composition of tar was applied in order to give what is known as the Tarvia Macadam.

Upon the conclusion of Mr. Caldwell's talk at 10:30 the meeting was adjourned.

GREEN CO. BOARD OF SUPERVISORS MEETS

Administrative Body of County Convened in Annual Sessions at Monroe Yesterday.

Monroe, Wis., Nov. 10.—The Green county board of supervisors convened here yesterday afternoon for the annual session. W. F. Truelsen, president, presided over the session, attending seventeen out of twenty-seven sessions, was again elected chairman. The board took a hand in the appointment of the standing committees by electing two members to assist the chairman in making up the committees. The Commercial and Savings bank, making a bid of 2 per cent on daily business, was designated as the county depository. A petition asking for an increase from $200 to $300 for the register in probate was denied. County Supervisor of Assessments P. C. Hoffman read his annual report in which he urged assessment at full value as the only means of getting an equal assessment. He reported the local assessment as made by the assessors at $2,020,690, which was raised by the state tax commission to $4,043,732. An increase of $158,925 was returned this year for the town of Jordan while there was an increase of a trifle over $100,000 in twenty-two districts in the county, which the supervisor reported would not cover the improvements made the past year.

MONTE CARLO GIRLS
GAVE VULGAR PLAYS

Might Do in a Wild Western Community But Too Coarse for Janesville.

With a performance that would better grace a cheap saloon or a low dive in the levee districts, rather than any respectable playhouse, the Monte Carlo Girls' Burlesque company appeared last night at the Myers theatre before a crowd of men ranging in age from tender youth that should have been detained at home to men gray-haired and almost devoid of any virtue. The purpose of the girls is not to carry out any plot or story, but to give an exhibition of dancing and singing of a rather poor order inter-persed with smutty jokes to arouse the passions of the auditors were presented. The pieces last night were almost the same as were given at the former appearance of the company in this city, the mimes having been changed, a few of the old jokes re-enacted and a few new ones worse than the old having been added. About the only clean feature of the entire spectacle was the dancing specialty by Earl Gates, which was rather clever. The crowning feature of the entertainment was the "Merry-oach" dance by May Collins and the chorus.

Her enunciation of the difficult passages was charming and as an en-skit.

Then came the singing of the "Star written and set to music by Mrs. Oc-

CHAPTER XVI.

"O, there you are!" Mrs. Harris stood glaring at her son-in-law.

"I thought you were going to meet us," said Beth, with a toss of her head.

"We waited until every one had left the theater," snorted her mother, dropping into a chair and fanning herself vigorously.

"I'm sorry. I forgot," explained Brooks, who this time spoke the truth.

"Forgot, forgot! That's a nice excuse!"

"I said I was sorry," he snipped.

"I've been worried about something else."

"Just spoiled the whole evening, leaving us there to be haunted by a lot of men," declared Mrs. Harris. "When we were standing in front of the theater, waiting for you, a snip of a boy came up to me and said, 'Hello, little one, aren't you Jonesome?'"

"Why, I thought he spoke to me!" affirmed Beth.

Her mother looked at her indignantly.

"No, he didn't," she retorted, with asperity. "I guess I know when I'm spoken to. The very idea! Where's Emma?"

Brooks told her that she had gone out for a few minutes.

"Who with?" demanded Mrs. Harris promptly.

"I think she went alone."

"You think she went alone! Don't you know? I don't see how you dare let your wife go out alone in this part of New York at this time of night."

"Well, nobody stole you," growled Joe, "so I guess Emma'll get home safely. Something has probably happened here. That's all I know about it. If she wants to tell you more when she comes that's her business, not mine."

"I certainly do not approve of her being out without a proper escort. It isn't ladylike."

"What I want to know is, where did she go?" insisted her mother.

Brooks turned upon her, and an oath almost escaped him as he snarled:

"You want to know a good many things, but it seems to me that a man and his wife can have some privacy. I told you she went on business. It's all she wants to tell you, all right, but don't try to mother-in-law it out of me!"

The entrance of Emma and Smith stopped on Mrs. Harris' lips the wrathful retort that had risen to them. She rose and greeted her daughter with an air of maternal solicitude.

"Ah, there you are, dear! Where have you been? We've been so worried."

"I am a little late."

"We were wondering about you, and Joe wouldn't tell," said Beth.

Smith reassured them.

"I was taking care of Emma all right," he declared. "You see, I'm a sort of utility man with the ladies—always trailing along in the rear ready to touch my cap and do all the chores and errands necessary."

Emma had taken no notice of her husband, whose eyes from the moment of her appearance had been glued avidly upon her. There was nothing in her demeanor to indicate that she had succeeded. Indeed, she appeared hungry and worn out, as she was, for the emotions of the night had left her exhausted to the point of breaking down. His anxiety and apprehension increased as he marked her condition.

"Where did you meet her?" he demanded of Smith, with an effort.

"On the way home," he answered.

"Not very much."

"But I bet he gave you an awful argument. Williams is not an easy man to get to give in. But here it is in black and white, and he can't go back on this. Did you ask him to put it in writing?"

"No."

"Then he did it of his own accord. Wonder if he called the detectives off. Did he say anything about them?"

"No."

"But it's all clear sailing now," he went on, selfishly jubilant, already planning for the future. "I can get another position and a better one. There's enough money left to give me time to find one. Do you think he'll interfere any more, Emma?"

"I don't know."

"What do you think? You must have some idea."

"I haven't the slightest."

"Well, anyway, Emma, you did splendidly. You came right to the front."

As he uttered the commendation he tried again to caress her.

"Please don't, Joe!"

"This time she rebuffed him sharply and moved away from him."

"Oh, all right, if that's the way you feel about it!"

He turned from her with an injured air, and, lighting a cigarette, began to pace the room. Although in his remorse during her absence he had resolved not to ask her what had passed in the captain's room, curiously, now that his confidence had been restored by the proof of immunity, tormented by his vicious mind. He was not only ready, but desirous to know everything that had occurred even to unwelcome details, if any such there were.

"He was there when you arrived?" he questioned, seeing that she showed no disposition to talk.

"Yes."

"Anybody else?"

"No, alone."

"You must have caught him in a good humor. He'd never have done this in one of his usual grouches. I didn't know you were such a diplomat."

Emma went to Mrs. Harris and put her arm around her.

"Mother, I'm very tired tonight," she said appealingly. "You won't mind if I ask you to go home and leave me. I've something to tell you some time, but I want to be alone now."

"You do look all tickered out, Emma," commented Beth.

"I am. You won't mind, will you, mother?"

"Certainly not. I'm hot and sticky myself."

"I'll take you to the subway and put you on the car," volunteered Brooks.

"You needn't mind," declined Mrs. Harris. "You're too disagreeable to-night. If you bring my purse from Emma's room, Jimmy will take us. Won't you, Jimmy?"

"I'm still the utility man," responded the complaisant Smith as Brooks went on the errand.

While Beth was putting her mother's hat straight Mrs. Harris whispered to Smith:

"Tell mother as much as I told you and then come back."

He nodded.

"Come on, folks," he said as Brooks reappeared with the purse. "You know time and the subway wait for no man."

Tortured by suspense, Brooks stood watching his wife.

She had sunk on to the sofa and sat there, still wearing her hat, the picture of weariness and sorrow.

The color came and went in his sunken cheeks. It was certain from her attitude that her mission had failed, yet he feared to learn it from her lips.

She gave no indication of intention or desire to break the silence or even that she was aware of his presence.

He could bear it no longer.

"It wouldn't do anything? It's all up?"

The words escaped him tremulously, in despairing tone, as though they answered the interrogation.

She did not reply, but, rising and drawing from her bosom the paper Captain Williams had given her, handed it to him.

He took it hesitatingly, almost fearfully.

"For me?"

"For you."

As he read it the blood rushed to his face, and he gave a sigh of immense relief. Joyfully he looked over to her, but there was no responsive exultation. She appeared crushed. It might have been his death warrant.

Doubting whether he had read it aright, he perused the acquittal again, with increasing exultation.

"Emma, you've succeeded!" he cried.

"This means he won't prosecute and it's all right. You made him do it. You have saved me!"

She nodded her acquiescence, and he went to her, brimming over with relief and gratification, to take her in his arms.

"You're the best little girl that ever happened, the pluckiest!"

Gently she pushed him from her.

"Please don't, Joe!"

"Why, what's the matter?"

"I'm tired—very tired."

"Of course you are," he said in a tone of concern and tenderness. "You sit down there, I'll bet you had a hard time. I know what Williams is."

"He would have led her to the sofa, but again she repulsed him gently. He went to the table and took up the acquittal he had laid on it.

"Found my accounts to be correct," he muttered. "That means he will have the books fixed up and nothing will show. Did he say much about me?"

"Not very much."

"But I bet he gave you an awful argument. Williams is not an easy man to get to give in. But here it is in black and white, and he can't go back on this. Did you ask him to put it in writing?"

"No."

"Then he did it of his own accord. Wonder if he called the detectives off. Did he say anything about them?"

"Anybody else?"

"No, alone."

"You must have caught him in a good humor. He'd never have done this in one of his usual grouches. I didn't know you were such a diplomat."

What did you say to him?"

"A good many things."

"Didn't tell him I sent you, did you?"

"He knew."

"He knew? How did he know? Who told him?"

"I don't know. He just knew."

"Somebody must have told him, and you were the only one who knew."

"No; he knew too. I didn't tell."

"But how did you open the conversation?" he demanded impatiently.

"What did you say? What's the matter? Can't you answer me?"

"I don't see why I should."

"I do. I want to know, and I've a right to know."

She vacillated no reply.

He dropped his authoritative tone and became persuasive.

"You say he was alone when you arrived. How did he receive you?" he coaxed.

She remained silent.

"What did he say to you? What did he do?"

Still she did not answer, but sat as though in a stupor.

"Come, Emma, don't be contrary. Tell all that took place. You know that it is between us—Did he ask you to kiss him?"

"I wonder what time it is," she said, with a shiver, as though she had not heard him.

"Never mind the time. What did he say when you asked him to let me off? He must have said a lot. You were gone long enough."

"Will you please tell me what time it is?"

"It is about 11:30. What of it? Why don't you tell me what happened at Williams'?"

She rose, still in her stupor of weariness.

"Goodbye, Joe," she said.

"Goodbye?" he echoed, amazed. "Where are you going?"

"To mother's. Jimmy's coming back for me."

"You didn't say anything to your mother while she was here about this?"

"That was for your sake. Every one doesn't need to know."

"What are you going to your mother's for? This is where you belong—your home. And what's Jimmy got to do with it?"

"I said goodbye."

"What's the reason you can't stay here?"

"You couldn't expect me to live with you after what happened tonight."

"Why not?"

There was consternation as well as anger in his voice.

"Because it is quite impossible. You ought to realize that."

"I don't see why it is impossible. Everything is all right now unless you have got some reason that makes it impossible."

"Yes, I think I've all the reason in the world to make it impossible. I think it's time for you to realize it."

CAUTION.

"Adelaide Emmeline, will you become my wife?"

"Are you in a position, Clarence, to keep a wife with four dolls and a doll's carriage?"

Men Are As Helpless As Children

When Taken Suddenly Ill—Here is a Common-Sense Safeguard.

Big strong man is as a helpless infant when he is suddenly ill. The sturdiest chap in town usually loses his self-control, and is utterly unable to regard his condition with the common sense that characterizes his everyday actions.

For example: He comes home tired, eats a heavy dinner, and sits down to read and smoke away a quiet evening.

Suddenly he notices a weight on his stomach; then sharp pains around his heart, and a feeling of suffocation. Thoughts of "heart disease" rush over him, and in his agony he fears the worst.

His trouble was acute indigestion brought on by overloading his tired stomach.

A couple of Dyspepsia Tablets would have given him instant relief—would have saved him hours of suffering.

Carry a package of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets in your vest pocket, or keep them in your room. Take one after each heavy meal and indigestion will not bother you.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets remedy stomach troubles by supplying the one element, the absence of which in the gastric juices causes indigestion and dyspepsia. They aid the stomach to digest food and to quickly convert it into rich red blood and material necessary for overcoming natural body waste.

We know what Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are and what they will do. We guarantee them to relieve indigestion and dyspepsia. If they fail we will return your money. Three sizes: 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Janesville only at our store.—The Rexall Store, The Smith Drug Co.
